

Additional Information about Ceramic Vessels Pictured on Page 10 of Archaeology Southwest Magazine Vol. 27, No. 2

From left to right, top to bottom:

ASM 16244, Tusayan Black-on-white jar recovered from Turkey Hill Pueblo. Photo by Patrick D. Lyons, courtesy of the Arizona State Museum, University of Arizona.

Mesa Verde Black-on-white bowl, Sand Canyon Pueblo vessel 4. Photo by David M. Grimes, courtesy of Crow Canyon Archaeological Center.

2006.60.122.1, Jeddito Black-on-yellow bowl. Courtesy of the Brigham Young University Museum of Peoples and Cultures.

2006.60.707.1, Fourmile Polychrome bowl. Courtesy of the Brigham Young University Museum of Peoples and Cultures.

St Johns Polychrome Bowl, Scribe S Pueblo, CS12, #11052. Photo by Garrett Trask, courtesy of the Cibola Archaeological Research Project, Archaeological Research Institute, Arizona State University, Tempe, Arizona.

GP9786, Casa Grande Red-on-buff jar from La Ciudad (AZ T:12:1[ASM]). Photo by Jannelle Weakly, courtesy of the Arizona State Museum, University of Arizona.

EAC 750K, Tonto Polychrome jar recovered from the Kuykendall site. Photo by Mathew A. Devitt, courtesy of Eastern Arizona College.

2006.60.274.1, McDonald Painted Corrugated bowl. Courtesy of the Brigham Young University Museum of Peoples and Cultures.

2006.60.19.1, Tularosa Black-on-white jar. Courtesy of the Brigham Young University Museum of Peoples and Cultures.

ASM 21232, Tanque Verde Red-on-brown jar from Martinez Hill (AZ BB:13:3[ASM]). Photo by Patrick D. Lyons, courtesy of the Arizona State Museum, University of Arizona.

88.1.8, Cliff Polychrome bowl. Photo by Mathew A. Devitt, courtesy of Eastern Arizona College.

Ramos Polychrome Jar. Courtesy of the Anthropology Collections, Museum of Anthropology and Archaeological Research Institute, School of Human Evolution & Social Change, Arizona State University, Tempe, Arizona.