Turkey Tanks with NAU Anthropology Club (January – March 2020): Assisted Dr. Claire Ebert and undergraduate anthropology students with the identification of archaeological materials typically found in the southwest. Taught lithic and ceramic classification including the Tusayan, San Francisco Mountain, and Alameda ceramic series. Work was conducted at the Turkey Tanks site located just east of Flagstaff.

Kaho'olawe Island Reserve (July 2019): Assisted in the replanting a variety of native and endemic plant species (including: Wiliwili, Ma'oa, and 'Aweoweo), to begin remediating the ecological damage on the island of Kaho'olawe. Utilized a variety of planting techniques both modern and traditional, to ensure the plants may take root. Role: Volunteer

Paleoecology Bilby Lab Internship; Northern Arizona University (September 2014 – May 2015): Assisted graduate student Jonathan Paklaian with his Paleoecology MS Thesis. Duties included but were not limited to sediment core sampling and both pollen and microfossil identification. Also worked at Stoneman Lake with a drilling team to produce one of the region's longest uninterrupted sediment cores. Role: Lab/Field Technician
